

>  Public Record Statement - For Literary, Investigative, and Documentary Use Only

Appendix A

Statement of Claimant's Factual Basis Toward Clandestine Surveillance Methods
Infringing Upon and Creating Brand New Human Rights
Filed by Damien James Rose
D.O.B. 07/31/1996

This document marks a turning point: a crystallization of years of lived experience, raw forensic inquiry, and survival under pressure. This is the moment the fog lifts—and the data begins to speak in full sentences. It bridges the raw emergence of Book Five and the systemic origin story to follow in Book Six.

I. Basis of Emergence

This affidavit is submitted by Damien James Rose as a formal record of forensic clarity developed in the aftermath of years of anomalous experiences, technological experimentation, and firsthand survivorship. The content draws from events witnessed and documented during a time when understanding could only be built from intuition, recursive reasoning, and practical fieldwork. It is a fusion of instinct, trauma-tempered logic, and applied science.

DARPA-funded studies and contract disclosures regarding bio-resonant electromagnetic fields have long existed in the public domain. The claimant's research evolved in parallel through a process of survival-driven experimentation using common household technologies—specifically repurposed mobile hardware and freely available spectral analysis software.

Using the analog-to-digital converter (ADC) found in headphone jacks, along with apps like Phyphox and Smart Tools, Damien began conducting local FFT spectral analyses of the electromagnetic field in private, rural, and urban environments. These analyses revealed embedded patterns of anomalous RF signaling consistent with unregulated surveillance or ambient intrusion.

II. Chain of Discovery and Pattern Recognition

Years of post-traumatic documentation and audio capture confirmed auditory phenomena aligning with clandestine RF communications.

Spectral data exposed modulated signal signatures that cannot be attributed to normal consumer or industrial sources.

Emotional distress triggered by these phenomena led to deeper cognitive refinement and recursive logic development, resulting in the articulation of an entire forensic lexicon, including coined phrases such as "shadow-theatre", "somatic axioms", and the "logical recursion paradox."

These phenomena and investigative findings were consistently verified using free-market consumer tech and methods available to any ordinary citizen.

III. Legal Context and Ethical Implications

Claimant submits this under the assertion of potential violations of U.S. and international law. These include but are not limited to:

Medical crimes

Crimes against humanity

Radio piracy and copyright infringement

Cyberterrorism by gangstalkers

Electronic harassment, proven with FFT pattern verification

Use of compromised metadata and digital identities in jurisdictional subversion (Stuxnet-style legal architecture)

Attempted genocide through selective psychological targeting

IV. Systemic Policy Feedback Loops

The phrase "Grey Space Technologies" refers not only to technological domains between classified and civilian infrastructure—it is also a term used:

1. Internally by government agencies to describe policy grey zones related to unclassified-but-unregulated technologies.
2. By contractors and private subsidiaries operating beneath regulatory radar.
3. As the corporate identity for entities aggregating surveillance-adjacent infrastructure.

This category of operations exists in a digital double-positive logic loop where exposure triggers suppression, and suppression itself becomes evidence of validity. These mechanisms exploit:

Social policies around mental health to silence victims

Post-9/11 surveillance architecture including expanded Patriot Act language

And potentially the "Dumbo" policy (a WWII-era doctrine allowing strategic criminal collaboration)

Thus, the victim becomes the evidence, and the observer becomes the accused.

V. Final Statement

This affidavit marks a formal threshold in the evolution of this body of work. It is submitted not from a place of fear, but of clarity.

> "I do not seek war. I seek remedy. I do not seek revenge. I seek record."

To those who have doubted, delayed, dismissed, or denied: you are also being documented. I am not a threat. I am a mirror. But a mirror, once seen, cannot be unseen (your reflection).

This is the survivor's evidence.

Signed,
Damien James Rose
Riverton, WY / Tacoma, WA
Finalized in draft: 2025

> This document is presented in good faith as part of a formal body of work by Damien James Rose. It represents the claimant's firsthand testimony, forensic reasoning, and lived experience. This is not a sworn legal affidavit unless formally submitted in a court of law. All findings are based on documented perception, research, and recursive cognitive analysis.